2005 Enterprising Women of the Year
Award Winners Named

CARY, NC: Enterprising Women Magazine will induct four remarkable women into the Enterprising Women Hall of Fame and recognize 13 outstanding women entrepreneurs at the third annual Enterprising Women of the Year Awards Celebration. A gala reception will be held on Friday, Feb. 11 to honor the winners at the American Adventure Rotunda at Disney’s Epcot in Florida. The winners, as well as 14 finalists will also be recognized at a breakfast in their honor on Saturday, Feb. 12 at Disney’s Grand Floridian Hotel & Spa. The Walt Disney World Company is the premiere event sponsor. United Parcel Service and Merrill Lynch are platinum event sponsors.

Winners were chosen from hundreds of entries, which were submitted via fax, mail and the magazine’s Web site, www.enterprisingwomen.com. They were chosen based on the growth and profitability of the enterprise, the leadership characteristics of the owner, the nominees outreach and mentoring of other women-owned firms, and the owner’s vision for the future of her business.

“Because of the overwhelming response to this year’s call for nominations, our judges have chosen 13 award winners representing different revenue levels. We are honoring three women entrepreneurs with annual revenues of over $10 million, three winners with revenues more than $5 million and up to $10 million, four winners with revenues over $1 million and up to $5 million, and three winners with revenues under $1 million,” according to Monica S. Smiley, Publisher and CEO of Enterprising Women.

The winners represent a diverse range of businesses, from the manufacturer of forced-entry/ballistic resistant buildings in Louisiana to a leading lumber supplier in the Northeast.

Four outstanding women will be inducted into the Enterprising Women Hall of Fame, recognizing their outstanding lifetime accomplishments and the significant contributions they have made to advancing the growth and development of women-owned enterprises.

For the first time, the publication will also honor seven outstanding women with the 2005 Enterprising Women Advocacy Award. Winners include government leaders who have provided vision and strong outreach to the women business owners’ community; and others who have built associations or networking organizations that are helping women entrepreneurs connect and grow their businesses.
Enterprising Women’s most prestigious award, induction into the magazine’s Hall of Fame, includes four outstanding inductees for 2005. They include:

- Gloria Bohan, the founder of Omega World Travel, who transformed a one-person travel agency into one of the largest travel management companies in the United States, with sales in excess of $1 billion, more than 1,000 employees, and 200 wholly-owned offices worldwide.
- Myra M. Hart, Professor of Management, Harvard Business School, whose research and teaching focuses on entrepreneurship. She is a member of the Diana Group, a research team of five professors investigating the unique challenges and opportunities that women entrepreneurs encounter as they search for the human and financial capital necessary to launch high growth ventures.
- Maria de Lourdes “Lulu” Sobrino, founder of Lulu’s Dessert Corporation, ranked among the largest and fastest growing Hispanic businesses in the United States and affectionately called the “queen of ready-to-eat gelatin.” She is considered a leader in building bridges between U.S. and Mexican women entrepreneurs.
- Pat Parker, co-founder of Native American Management Services, a management consulting business started in 1989. A member of the Choctaw Nation, Pat’s firm bridges the gap between the federal government and the governments of American Indians and Alaska natives. She has made a lifelong commitment to mentoring and supporting Native American women entrepreneurs.

Winners of the 2005 Enterprising Women of the Year Award for businesses with over $10 million in annual revenues are:
